

Corporate Fact Sheet

Corporate Background

Based in Evansville, Indiana, Woods and Woods is a family-operated law firm dedicated to representing the rights of individuals injured or disabled by the negligent conduct of others.

Since its establishment in 1985, Woods and Woods injury lawyers and staff members have actively participated in the well-being of the community through involvement in youth sports, scouting, and annually sponsoring the Safe and Sober Free Ride Home program.

Mike Woods founded the firm in 1985 after becoming interested in advocating for the rights of injury victims early in his law career. His brother Steve joined the firm as a case manager in 1987. The firm expanded with the addition of their brother Bill who joined soon after obtaining his law degree. Several years later, their brother Rick also joined the family business, submitting his talents as a case manager. The firm's tradition of family and community involvement was continued with the addition of local Evansville attorney Rod Clutter in 2003 whose wife also joined him at the firm.

Bill and Mike Woods are both board-certified attorneys, an honor bestowed by the National Board of Trial Advocates on less than one percent of all attorneys in Indiana. Attorneys of this caliber must be recommended by three judges and must pass a rigorous examination in addition to the Indiana Bar Examination, and their qualifications must meet the highest standards of review. Board certification proves an attorney has experience, dedication and training.

Woods and Woods continues to build on the firm's fundamental values of commitment to providing legal work of the highest standard, offering responsive client service, and helping the community. When you need legal help, you deserve the kind of service Woods and Woods can provide.
